T&D Europe supports the Tallinn e-Energy Declaration

On 19 September in Tallinn, EU Energy Ministers signed the e-Energy Declaration alongside energy market stakeholders. T&D Europe is proud to be among the supporters of this text. This Declaration is an initiative of the Estonian presidency of the Council. It calls upon Member States, network operators, utilities and the industry to be open and to welcome the digitalisation of the energy sector and the changes, innovation and new business models it brings.

T&D Europe members are convinced digitalisation is a true enabler of the energy transition and the decarbonisation of the economy. The electric transmission & distribution equipment industry continues to develop innovative digital solutions for energy-efficient grid network management. Digitalisation allows for a better accommodation of the renewable energy, for less energy losses on the network and for more prosumers to enter the market.

The e-Energy Declaration text is available here.
